

CMU HAILS INTERNATIONALLY

Jamaica's first internationally certified master welder Ricardo Campbell (third left), a student at Caribbean Maritime University (CMU), is pictured with (from left) Lorna Townsend, customer sales and liaison representative, interCaribbean Airways, representing Condor; Dr Bernd von Munchow-Pohl, ambassador of the Federal Republic of Germany; Dr Birte Timm, public relations and human resources manager, Germany Ship Repair Jamaica (GSRJ); Klaus-Peter Nitz, general manager, GSRJ; Erica Simmons, executive director, CDIAM, CMU; Janet Dyer, managing director, HEART Trust/NTA; Dr Eric Deans, chief executive officer, Jamaica Special Economic Zone; and Eduardo Rodrigues, senior consultant DNV GL. Occasion was a reception Friday, December 7, 2018, at CMU's main campus in Kingston to celebrate Campbell's anticipated contribution to the development of the specialised field in Jamaica. Campbell was recently trained and certified in Germany. (Photos: Michael Gordon)

CERTIFIED MASTER WELDER

Caribbean Maritime University engineering student and member of the university's pop band, Dihanroy Mitchell entertains guests at a reception on Friday, December 7 to recognise Ricardo Campbell, Jamaica's first internationally certified master welder.

Public relations and human resource manager of German Ship Repair Jamaica (GSRJ) Dr Birte Timm, shares the vision for the GSRJ/Caribbean Maritime University (CMU) partnership at a reception on December 7 to recognise CMU student Ricardo Campbell, who, after training in Germany, is now Jamaica's first internationally certified master welder.